Nobody told me ... what it means when I look at my student account and see a negative sign showing for my balance.
Now you know ... that means you have a credit balance. In other words, you received more financial assistance than what is needed to pay your tuition and fees. You can use your credit balance to pay for books, transportation and other educationally related expenses.

Nobody told me ... how I get my credit balance.
Now you know ... credit balances are issued at the end of the second week of each term and weekly thereafter. Balances are issued by check and mailed to the address on file with the college or electronically deposited into your bank account if you sign up for eRefunds through myLakeland.

Nobody told me ... I still owe money.
Now you know ... you can check your Student Account on myLakeland to see if you owe the college money.

Nobody told me ... I should enroll in the Tuition Loan Payment Plan (TLPP) if I am unable to pay my tuition and my financial aid is not yet processed.
Now you know ... the TLPP allows for multiple payments of tuition and fees during the semester, but obligates you for payment if you do not receive financial aid or it does not cover your balance in full.

Nobody told me ... class attendance is required if I'm receiving financial aid.
Now you know ... as stewards of the various financial aid programs, we must ensure that financial aid funds are being used as they are intended, to assist with your education. That is why attendance in class is so important and required.

Nobody told me ... it can take 15 business days to review paperwork.
Now you know ... it can take up to 15 business days to review any paperwork (appeals, verification, etc.) submitted to Lakeland’s Financial Aid Office.

Nobody told me ... that there are limits to the amount of Subsidized Direct Loans I may borrow.
Now you know ... in addition to yearly loan limits based on grade level and annual limits, you are limited to receiving Subsidized Direct Loans for no more than 150% of the length of your academic program. For example, if you are in an associate degree program, you are eligible for subsidized loans for three years.

Nobody told me ... the Student Service Center (SSC) is able to answer financial aid questions.
Now you know ... the SSC (located in the A-Building) is your one stop for assistance with admission, registration and financial aid. At the SSC, you can also check in for walk-in counseling and get assistance with the Ohio Benefit Bank and emergency situations.

Nobody told me ... what classes I can take that are eligible for financial aid.
Now you know ... that financial aid will cover classes that are needed for your degree or certificate. You can check Degree Tracker through myLakeland to view what classes are needed for your program or meet with a counselor.

Nobody told me ... I can get financial aid for the summer semester.
Now you know ... you will need to complete the FAFSA and register for summer classes for financial aid to be awarded to include summer.

Still have questions?

Contact the Lakeland’s Financial Aid Office at finaid@lakelandcc.edu or 440.525.7070 or visit the Student Service Center.

7/2018 sm (10637)
Nobody told me … financial aid is available to help pay for my tuition and books, and assist with other educationally related expenses.

Now you know … you can apply for financial aid by completing the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) at www.fafsa.gov beginning October 1st each year.

Nobody told me … I can view my financial aid information online.
Now you know … log in to myLakeland at my.lakelandcc.edu. Click on the Student tab and click on Financial Aid.

Nobody told me … I need to provide my authorization in order to use my financial aid in Lakeland’s Bookstore and Breakers cafeteria.
Now you know … you can submit the Authorization Form online through myLakeland or at the Student Service Center.

Nobody told me … it’s my responsibility to be aware of the policies, processes and deadlines that can affect my financial aid.
Now you know … as a financial aid recipient, you must be aware of the policies, processes and deadlines that can affect your financial aid. These can be found on myLakeland.

Nobody told me … if I withdraw from ALL of my classes, my financial aid may be adjusted and I could owe a bill to the college.
Now you know … if you withdraw from all of your classes, federal regulations require that we determine the percentage of aid you are eligible to receive based on the period of time you attended. This calculation could result in an adjustment and create a bill for you.

Nobody told me … that withdrawing from a class could affect my financial aid.
Now you know … if you withdraw from a class after the 100% refund period, you must have attended the class and the instructor reported your attendance for your financial aid to be unaffected. Your aid may be adjusted for any classes where attendance cannot be confirmed, which could result in a bill. Withdrawing from classes could also affect your Standards of Academic Progress (SAP).

Nobody told me … I could lose my financial aid if I’m not making progress toward my degree.
Now you know … to be eligible for financial aid, you must be making Satisfactory Academic Progress (SAP) by having a minimum cumulative grade point average (GPA) of 2.0, completing 67% of all the credits you attempt, and completing your degree within 150% of the published credits to earn the degree. In addition, if you have GPA hours and have a 0.00 GPA, you will immediately become ineligible for financial aid.

Nobody told me … I should not only check my grades, I should also check my SAP status.
Now you know … you can check your SAP status at the end of each term after grades are posted through myLakeland. Your status will indicate whether or not you are still eligible for financial assistance and let you know what you can do if you become ineligible.

Nobody told me … if my SAP status calculates to WARN, I may be required to attend a Promoting Student Success Program workshop.
Now you know … Lakeland’s Financial Aid Office will contact you via your Lakeland student email with the times and dates of these sessions. Students who do not attend the workshop will not be eligible for further financial aid assistance until they make up their deficiencies.

Nobody told me … there are deadlines for submitting the Standards of Academic Progress appeals.
Now you know … the deadlines to submit appeals are posted throughout campus on electronic signage, the financial aid announcement web page, the My Messages channel on the Home tab in myLakeland, and on the appeal form. Typically, the deadline is the first day of the term for which the student is appealing.

Nobody told me … if I add a class late, my financial aid may not adjust to cover that class.
Now you know … the financial aid freeze date locks a student’s enrollment status for determining the maximum amount of federal grants a student is eligible to receive. The freeze date corresponds with the 100% tuition and fee refund deadline. If you are enrolled in multiple parts of term, your freeze date is the end of the 100% refund period of your earliest class.
It is in your best interest to make all your schedule changes for the entire semester by the freeze date. If you add or drop classes before the freeze date, the amount of financial aid could be affected. If classes are added or dropped after the freeze date, your federal grants will not change as long as you have attended all of the classes you are enrolled in on the freeze date and you do not withdraw from all of your classes.

Nobody told me … what it means to be selected for verification.
Now you know … the Department of Education randomly selects students for the verification process. The Financial Aid Office will compare the information you provided on the FAFSA to documents (i.e. tax return transcripts) you submit to them.

Nobody told me … what documents I need to submit.
Now you know … You can check myLakeland for the documents you need to submit. You will be able to download automatically many of the forms like the Verification Worksheet. If during the review more information or clarification is needed, you will be notified through myLakeland.